

COUNTY INVADED BY MATERIAL MEN

Representatives of Brick and Concrete Manufacturers Make Fight for Business.

HAVE EYE ON SITUATION HERE

County Commissioners and City Councilmen will Hear Merits of Materials Advocated.

With petitions asking for the permanent improvement of several highways pending before the county commissioners and the inauguration of a movement to pave various streets in this city, Jackson county is the popular spot of Indiana just now for representatives of concrete and brick manufacturing concerns. These concerns have been waging a spirited fight during the last two years for business and whenever a contract of whatever size is to be awarded the representatives are sure to appear several days before to urge the use of the material in which they are interested.

Several representatives of concrete concerns and brick manufacturers were here today conferring with county officials and representatives of the city. The brick men are unusually active in this locality as concrete in the past has been used more extensively than brick and they hope to bring brick into favor with the farmers and property owners so that a petition will be filed designating the use of brick in at least part of the contracts to be awarded in this county during the next few months.

William R. Schoonover, consulting engineer, in the employ of Indiana brick concerns, was here from Indianapolis today conferring with persons interested in the proposed improvements in both the city and county. He is very anxious to have brick used in some of the contracts, at least, and says he is quite willing that a stretch of road be constructed of concrete and another of brick so that the wearing qualities of the two materials under the same traffic conditions may be watched.

Mr. Schoonover told of a new method of building brick roadway which is of interest now in view of the improvements proposed in the near future. He says that after years of tests it has been found that brick streets and highways can be successfully constructed without the use of curbing on either side and that this eliminates a big item of expense in the work. Under the old system a grouting of coarse gravel was first laid while a second coating of richer mixture was placed on top of the foundation. Under the new system, he says, the coarse and the second coat of cement are made at the same time. The first is distributed by a large beam extending from one side of the roadway to the other and located at a certain height. The second coat is leveled by a second beam less than half an inch higher than the first. The brick is then laid before the grouting has cemented and is "welded" to the foundation. While the work is being done large steel curbs hold the brick and cement in place until dried, after which they are removed. The brick and the foundation dry into such a firm, solid body, he asserts, that the brick will be broken in two before the joints break. After the brick are laid they are rolled with a hand roller. The surface is then "slushed" with a special mixture. This, when dried, holds the brick firmly in place and also makes the surface smooth.

Mr. Schoonover remarked about the condition of the roadway on Chestnut street which was paved with brick about twenty years ago. He says that the crevices between the brick on that street were filled with sand which is now wearing away. He believes the new system is much better and is assured that streets laid in that manner will last much longer than when constructed by the old method. The price is also a "talking point" of the brick men and they say that brick streets can now be constructed at practically the same price.

The concrete men are just as insistent that the material they are selling is "just the thing" for local conditions. They say that whenever a concrete street does not wear as it should the fault is with the manner in which it is laid and not with the material. They declare that inasmuch as many of the streets are already paved with concrete they should be uniformly improved and that when a concrete street is rightly constructed it will not be in need of repair for a generation or more.

Under the state law the property owners in the city have the right to file a majority petition stating the kind of material to be used in such an improvement and usually the county commissioners are governed by the choice of the majority of the farmers in the community where the roads are situated.

WAR PICTURES THRILL BIG CROWD AT MAJESTIC

"On The Firing Line With The Germans" Portrays Actual Fighting Scenes, Two Shows Tonight.

A big matinee crowd at the Majestic this afternoon was thrilled by the spectacular battle scenes and other phases of the great European conflict as shown in the war film "On The Firing Line With The Germans," which is being presented here today under the auspices of the Republican. That the film is the greatest example of motion picture photography ever seen in Seymour was the verdict of those who saw it this afternoon. Scenes which have made history in the past few months in Europe are portrayed with remarkable clearness, and the awful conflict now raging across the sea is brought home with telling forcefulness.

There will be two performances this evening, at 6:45 and 9 o'clock, and if this afternoon's crowd is any index, the theatre will be crowded for both shows. There are nine reels of pictures, portraying Von Hindenberg's great drive into Poland, the capture and occupation of Warsaw, the storming of Fort Novogeorgievsk showing every phase of the fighting and giving a clear conception of what present day war really is. The Kaiser is shown at the front, intimate views of Von Hindenberg, Von Bessler and other German leaders, the new machines of war, military aeroplanes and Zeppelins in action, etc.

SHORT CIRCUIT OF ELECTRIC WIRE MISTAKEN FOR FIRE

Alarm Turned in to the Fire Department at 3 O'clock This Morning—Repairs Made.

Reflection of a flame caused by a "short circuit" between an electric light wire and a branch of a snow covered tree on Indianapolis avenue was mistaken for a fire at 3 o'clock this morning and an alarm was turned in to the fire department. The firemen made a quick run but the mistake was discovered before they arrived.

The moisture from the melting snow which fell during the afternoon and the early hours of the night resulted in many short circuits about the city. In many places the electric light wires hit the branches of the shade trees and by constant contact the insulation is worn off. When the trees are damp the short circuit results in a flame. This condition was general throughout the city last night and the power supplied to the residences in the north part of the city was switched off until the repairs could be made. The linemen were at work from an early hour today.

QUICKSAND FOUND ON FEDERAL SITE

Deposit Found While Excavating for Foundation on West Side of The Lot.

REPORT MADE TO WASHINGTON

Citizens Recall That Small Stream Flowed West on Third Street Years Ago.

A deposit of quicksand underlying the level of the basement at the site of the new postoffice building, corner Third and Chestnut streets, has been encountered and further work is temporarily delayed until reports are made to the supervising architect in Washington. The presence of quicksand was first noticed several days ago while excavating for the drainage tiles but it was not sufficient to interfere with that part of the contract.

When the workmen started to dig for the foundation wall on the west side of the site, however, it was found that the quicksand was in such quantities that it would be inadvisable to proceed with the construction of the wall as first planned. W. C. Staver, superintendent for the contractors, made several tests. A hole four feet deep was dug below the level and an iron rod about four feet long was sunk into the ground.

The test proved that considerable quicksand would have to be encountered in constructing the wall. It is said that a solid bottom was not reached in the tests. The superintendent immediately reported the condition to his company and to the supervising architect in Washington. The department was fully informed of the unexpected condition and will make recommendations immediately. It is said there are several ways in which the new condition can be overcome and the contractors will of course, follow the plan suggested by the architects.

Government Inspector Bradley was here from New Albany today and went over the situation with Mr. Staver. It is not believed that the deposit will interfere to any great extent with the construction of the building as the condition here is encountered in many places in building postoffices and federal buildings. Frequently the foundations are enlarged at the bottom to overcome the difficulty and in extreme cases piling are driven into the ground and the foundation built on the heavy timbers. It is hardly probable, however, that it will be necessary to adopt the last mentioned method.

Years ago a creek ran through the lot where the new postoffice will be erected. The stream flowed west on what is now Third street and it was necessary to have foot bridges at the crossings of Chestnut and Indianapolis avenue. The original name of Third street was "Branch Street" derived from the stream which flowed through the center of the city.

With the coming of the improved drainage systems however, the creek disappeared. The street and adjoining lots were filled up to their present levels. The site of the new building, however, was not filled as were some of the other lots in that vicinity and this accounted for the low level which was found by the contractors.

As soon as the supervising architect returns recommendation Mr. Staver will begin work and after the foundation is constructed no difficulty will be experienced in completing the building and the stone and other supplies needed will be ready for shipment.

STATE RESTS IN THE GREEN TRIAL

Many Witnesses From Here Subpoenaed to Testify at Trial Held in Circuit Court.

JURY HEARD THE EVIDENCE

Defendant Arrested for Intoxication on Hallowe'en—Thirty-Three Witnesses for Defense.

The case of the State of Indiana against Sam Green, son of Dan Green, on trial in circuit court today has attracted much attention and more than a score of witnesses went to Brownstown today to testify. The defendant is charged with intoxication. He was arrested by Policeman Bruce Stewart on Hallowe'en at the corner of Chestnut and Second streets. The policeman is alleged to have hit him over the head with his club inflicting a gash. Green was taken to jail where the charge was preferred against him.

The jury was accepted by the attorneys and sworn about 10 o'clock, an hour after the case was called. The defendant is represented by Attorneys John M. Lewis and Seba A. Barnes and the state's case is in charge of Prosecutor Marshall Woolery and Deputy T. H. Montgomery. Every step in the trial is being hard fought by the attorneys.

Deputy Prosecutor made the opening statement to the jury and outlined the state's case. About a dozen witnesses were placed on the stand to testify for the prosecution. The witnesses were those who are alleged to have witnessed the arrest.

The opening statement for the defense was made by Attorney Barnes. The state completed its evidence about 3 o'clock this afternoon after which the witnesses for the defense were called. It is stated that about thirty-five witnesses have been subpoenaed for the defense and it is expected that the trial will continue until tomorrow.

The boy's father says he intends to fight the case in hope of securing an acquittal for his son.

THORNTON JARVIS TAKES ANOTHER FALL FROM "WAGON"

Name Appeared in the List of Fourteen and He Drew 101 Days at The State Penal Farm.

Thornton Jarvis, whose name appeared in the list of fourteen sent by Mayor Ross to the local saloonists with instructions not to sell to them, had his second fall from the "water wagon" last night since the "blanket flagging" notice was issued. Jarvis was arrested the first of this week for intoxication and was fined $5 and costs on a plea of guilty.

Last night the police found him in an intoxicated condition and carried him to jail. He was arraigned in city court today and was fined $1 and costs and sentenced to the Indiana Penal Farm for ninety days when he pleaded guilty. Being unable to pay the fine and costs, amounting to $11, he will be required to serve 101 days at Putnamville. This means that he will not be released until the first of June. Jarvis is one of the "regulars" in city court appearing frequently on charge of intoxication.

Dan Rude was also fined $1 and costs for intoxication. The fine was paid.

DIRECT PRESSURE CAUSES BELL AT FACTORY TO RING

New Automatic Fire Extinguishing System Installed by Reliance Manufacturing Company.

Residences on South Chestnut street were awakened about 3 o'clock this morning by the ringing of the big outside gong at the Reliance Manufacturing Company's plant which is connected with the automatic fire extinguishing system, and believed that the plant was on fire. The system has just been installed on the building and at one point a small leak in the pipe occurred.

The system is so arranged that when the pressure in the pipes reaches a certain point a small bell in the interior of the building is sounded. When the pressure is increased the outside gong on the front of the building rings. At the same time a supply of water is forced through a pipe in the front of the building. When the fire alarm was turned in early today the direct pressure was turned on from the pumping station and caused the outside gong to ring. A small amount of water was thrown on the sidewalk but the interior escaped damage. The leak in the pipe will be repaired at once. By the system that has been installed the building is automatically protected from fire. When the heat raises the pressure on the pipes to a certain point water is automatically thrown in every section of the building.

GORE RESOLUTION BRINGS STIRRING SCENES IN SENATE

Stone, Lodge and Williams Support President in Attitude Against Issuance of Warning.

TWO HOURS' HEATED DEBATE

Possibilities of Hostilities with Germany Openly Discussed in Speeches on the Floor.

GORE DEFENDS RESOLUTION

Charges that Holders of Half-Million of Allies' Bonds Want Congress to Insure Them.

(By Bond P. Geddes, United Press Staff Correspondent)

Washington, March 2—The storm over the President's demands for a "show down" in the matter of the interruption by congress of his negotiations with Germany broke in the senate this afternoon.

The senate responded to the President's demand for the consideration of the Gore warning resolution with nearly two hours of tempestuous debate. At any early morning session tomorrow final vote may be taken.

Senators Stone, Lodge and Williams in speeches demanded that the President be given the vote he asks. Possibilities of hostilities with Germany were openly discussed. Senator Stone answering a statement of Senator Gore denied the President had ever intimated that the war with the Teutonic allies would be desirable.

Senator Williams charged opposing democrats with "nagging and defying the President." Senator Lodge called upon the senate to show the country that congress stands behind the president and not behind Germany.

While the senate was breaking in stormy debate the house remained obdurate against considering the McLeMORE resolution as desired by the president.

A meeting of the foreign affairs committee was called this afternoon with final action possible then. The President issued an ultimatum during the day to Congressional leaders that he would insist upon a record vote and let it be known that he would stand by his position while congress is hearing from the country.

The President also took up the matter of Republican support, inviting Republican Leader Mann to confer with him late this afternoon.

Stirring scenes unparalleled since the Spanish war days were brought on by the debate. Every senator was in his seat. The galleries were jammed. About one hundred house members came over and crowded about the chamber. It was practically certain the senate will sustain the president but greatest doubt prevailed about the house's action.

"Bring on your Gore resolution or any other resolution and table them," said Williams. "Let's see if the senators stand with the President on a principle of international law five hundred years old. The international law is plain" continued Williams, "and Germany wishes to change it and makes us a party to the crime. For us to recognize Germany's claim would be an unneutral act. The only danger of war is in the effort to prevent the president from carrying on negotiations. It is your action and yours alone that induced the last position taken by Germany."

"I believe the holders of a half billion of the allies' bonds would like for us to insure their cause," said Gore. "Our whole welfare should not be placed in the hands of any one madcap American who might ship on an armed merchantman."

"The attitude of the President in his letter to Senator Stone is the one I have always upheld," said Lodge. "He has a right to a vote and to know if congress is behind him or whether congress takes the view the opposing power is taking."

Shoots Victim Without Warning With Shot Gun.

Bedford, Ind., March 2.—Frank Quackinbush, forty-five years old, superintendent of the Peerless quarry of the Indiana Limestone company, was shot and almost instantly killed by Samuel Robinson, a stripling employed at the quarry, who had been discharged.

The men quarreled in the morning and Robinson returned after dinner and fired a charge from a shotgun into the superintendent's breast without warning. The slayer, who is only eighteen years old, attempted to escape, but was captured and is in the county jail here, facing a charge of first-degree murder.

The killing was witnessed by several men with whom Robinson had been engaged in "stripping." When the boy was discharged he demanded his pay immediately, but the quarry superintendent insisted that he wait for the regular pay day, only two days away, since the quarry was four miles from Bedford and it would require too much time to obtain the cash.

Robinson then insisted upon going to work and when he was warned away attempted to strike Quackinbush with a shovel. Other men interfered and the young man left the quarry. Four hours later he returned with a shotgun, and, approaching the superintendent as he directed the work above the quarry, shot Quackinbush without a word.

Quackinbush faced the youth as he approached and had raised a hand as though to shield himself. The charge tore off his hand and passed into his breast.

President Insists Congress Shall Face Issue Without Any Evasion—Desires Foreign Countries to Know Country Is Behind Him.

Washington, March 2.—The president and the leaders of congress have failed thus far to agree in regard to a vote on the submarine issue.

The ending of day of many conferences found the president determined to force the issue presented by his letter to the rules committee of the house and standing firm against any compromise. A decisive vote on the warning resolution was insisted upon by the president.

The consternation of congress was greater even than it was when the president unexpectedly sent his letter to Acting Chairman Pou. Many attempts were made by the leaders to get together and decide upon some definite program, but all these efforts had failed and the house leaders decided to send Chairman Flood to the White House to see if a more definite understanding with the president could be reached.

At a meeting of the house committee on foreign affairs an attempt was made to yield to the president's suggestion and report out the resolution warning Americans off armed ships. This attempt was howled down in the committee and the incident disclosed the fact that only four of the sixteen members who were present seemed disposed to stand by the president's wishes.

Representative Pou, acting chairman of the rules committee, made this announcement:

"Unless the foreign affairs committee reports a resolution in conformity with the course suggested by the president, the rules committee will take the matter in its own hands."

This statement by Pou had the effect of inflaming sentiment among the rebels.

Members of congress, who find the president's plan very embarrassing just now, because a vote would put them on record on the armed ship proposition on the eve of nominating primaries at home, tried to get an agreement to pass a resolution of confidence in the president's ability to handle the foreign situation and let it go at that. But President Wilson, it is understood, declined to accept a substitute, declaring unequivocally that he desired that congress should vote on one of the many resolutions warning Americans to keep off of Armed ships.

He wishes to give foreign governments to understand that the demand for such action by congress is due to a minority of the members and an exaggerated fear of trouble with Germany and that in reality congress and the country are behind the president in his foreign policy.

It was made known at the state department during the day that Germany's latest assurances on the conduct of submarine warfare are not so broad as the United States desires, but it is indicated that no further steps will be taken by this government until the administration is certain its action will not be embarrassed in congress.

Chairman Flood also prepared another resolution, combining the warning resolution with an indorsement of the president's attitude. It is understood that this resolution was not acceptable to President Wilson.

Leaders who last week were positive in asserting a warning resolution would pass were silent. They insisted there was no way to tell the temper of the house.

Philadelphia, March 2.—Three big industrial concerns of this city have announced their intention of supporting the preparedness movement by organizing their men into companies, so they could uphold on the field of battle, the honor of the United States. The companies who announced their intention of equipping their men are: The Packard Motor Car company, Philadelphia branch; The Friehofer Baking company, and the Lubin Manufacturing company.

The number of men on the payrolls of the three concerns approximates 1,000, many of whom have already enrolled their names on the list of those willing to be soldiers.

German Ultimatum Shifts Interest From Verdun—Teuton Seaplane Raids English Coast, Killing Small Child—No Military Damage.

London, March 2.—The lull in the fighting north of Verdun continues and there was no infantry action in the district to the east of the fortress to which the Germans transferred their efforts. Comparative calm prevails all about the fortress and in the Woivre. The German artillery resumed action against the French lines between Nancourt and Forges, northwest of Verdun, in the regions of Vaux and Damloup, northeast of Verdun and about Frenes.

The district to the west of Poknta-Mousson has become a center of interest as a result of German activity in this region. In the French communique, the war office announced that the French artillery had directed its fire against the second and third German lines, where it appeared that preparatory evolutions were in progress. It will be recalled that the Germans held a sort of maneuver rehearsal under the eyes of the kaiser before launching the attack on Verdun from the north. Because of this, importance is given to the evidence of such preparation in the district west of Pont-a-Mousson. The center of the artillery activity in this region is the line between Regneville, on the Thiaucourt road, and Remenauville, between this road and the road from Pont-a-Mousson to Flirey. The French communique tells also of the activity of French trench cannon in the Bois Le Pretre, between this line and Pont-a-Mousson.

A German seaplane raided the southeast coast of England, according to a war office statement. A nine-months-old child was killed. The statement asserts that no military damage was done, though the raiders "dropped several bombs." It is believed in some quarters the visit was the forerunner of other raids.

Interest suddenly shifted from the battle-torn field before Verdun to Berlin and Lisbon, following a report that Germany had sent an ultimatum to Portugal, demanding the restoration within forty-eight hours of the German ships recently seized in Portuguese waters.

It has been suspected for some time throughout Europe that Portugal was on the verge of war with Germany. It has been the desire of the Portuguese leaders to cast their lot with the allies and the seizure of the German ships Feb. 23 in the Tague by the naval committee was considered an open attempt to bring about a crisis. Thirty-six German and Austrian ships were taken over by the Portuguese authorities.

WAIT FOR "SECRET ORDERS"
U. S. to Make No Move In Submarine Issue For the Present.

Washington, March 2.—Officials of the State department are still awaiting the arrival of the copies of the alleged "secret orders" of the British admiralty, directing British merchant vessels to use their defensive armament for attacks on German and Austrian submarines. Until these copies arrive it was indicated that the American government would make no move in the further development of the issue with Germany growing out of the new submarine campaign.

The department also is awaiting information from the zone of the new submarine operations as to how the U boats are conducting the campaign. The German embassy apparently is getting nothing from Berlin to shed further light on the rules issued to submarine commanders. Every confidence is expressed, however, that rigid care will be taken to avoid sinking any enemy ships that are not armed.

OPEN CAMPAIGN
Sink Two British Ships First Day of Operation.
ACTIVE IN MEDITERRANEAN

Believed the Actual Campaign Set Forth in the Berlin Memorandum to Neutrals Will Not Begin in a Spectacular Way.

London, March 2.—The first day of the new Austro-German submarine war, the decree announcing destruction without warning of armed merchantmen became effective, was ushered in by the sinking of two British steamers, the Thornaby of 1,732 tons, and the Melvina, of 1,224 tons. All aboard the Thornaby are reported killed or drowned. It is believed she was sunk in the Mediterranean. The Melvina is reported to have been torpedoed off the Kentish. Nothing was learned concerning her fate.

A late dispatch received by Lloyds says the Thornaby was sunk by a mine.

This being the date on which the new Austro-German campaign began, the loss of these two vessels was naturally connected with it. There is nothing in the preliminary dispatches, however, to indicate the Thornaby or the Melvina or both, came under the head of vessels against which the new warfare is directed. Neither is believed to have carried arms, even for defensive purposes. Moreover, the sinking of the two vessels, even if the Thornaby was torpedoed, is not unusual, as the German submarines have been destroying allied merchantmen for weeks for carrying contraband, taking flight or other reasons.

The general opinion is that the actual campaign, as set forth in the recent German memorandum to the neutrals, will not begin in any spectacular way, particularly in view of the still undetermined questions which lie at the basis of the German-American submarine controversy.

The Mediterranean, it is believed, will be the chief scene of the new U-boat operations and attacks are also looked for in the Adriatic, where the Austrians, from their base at Pola, are expected to do all in their power to prevent traffic of supplies and munitions as well as transports between the Italian coast towns and Avlona, the next objective of the Austrian and Bulgarian invaders in Albania.

The number of members of the Thornaby's crew is not known here, nor could the number be learned, or whether passengers are on board.

Arrests Made by Federal Officers in New York.

New York, March 2.—Plans of United States fortifications have been found in the possession of Richard von Arend and Rudolph von Kracht, two young Germans, arrested here on a charge of operating the mails to swindle, according to a statement made by Assistant United States District Attorney E. W. McDonald.

Von Arend and Von Kracht, who say, according to the federal authorities, that they are German army lieutenants, were arraigned before a United States commissioner here.

According to postoffice inspectors, the two men had conducted a systematic begging campaign through the mails, asking for help on the ground that they were destitute German army officers. They are said to have refused the aid of representatives of charity organizations because they did not wish to make public their antecedents, as required by such organizations.

Von Arend and Von Kracht were held in $5,000 bail each for a hearing Saturday. They denied ever having had any plans of American forts and said the only things answering such a description that they owned were pictures sent them from Germany by relatives.

Syracuse, N. Y., March 2.—The features of the Democratic unofficial state convention held here were the harmony which prevailed and the keynote speech of ex-Governor Martin H. Glynn.

The following will head the New York delegation to the St. Louis Democratic convention: Delegates at large, United States Senator James A. O'orman of Manhattan; Democratic States Chairman William Church Osborn of Putnam; Democratic County Chairman George J. Meyer of Buffalo; Samuel Utermeyer, New York.

Alternates at large: John J. Kuhn of Brooklyn; ex-Lieutenant Governor Thomas F. Connelley of Clinton; Mayor C. F. Burns of Troy; Frank L. Crocker, Massau.

The platform practically instructs the delegates for Wilson, declaring: "We unhesitatingly recommend the renomination of Woodrow Wilson for president of the United States."

Crawfordsville, Ind., March 2.—Miss Helen Elston Smith, of this city, niece of Mrs. Lew Wallace and of Mrs. Henry S. Miss Smith was in New York to await the arrival of the body of her friend. It is presumed that in some manner a mistake was made in the shipment of the coffin, and that Miss Smith's friend's body was buried in some part of war-stricken France with military honors.

Pittsburg, March 2.—About forty persons were injured, at least two critically, when an Ardmore street car and its trailer, carrying about 210 persons left the rails at Johnstown street and Franklin avenue, Wilkinsburg, upsetting the trailer and partly wrecking the front car. The cars, known as trippers, are used to carry employees of the Westinghouse interests in East Pittsburg to their homes along the Ardmore boulevard and into East Liberty. The front car was a modern wooden one and the trailer was one of the late model steel cars.

The passengers, panic-stricken at the ever-increasing momentum, tried to run to the doors, but the cars were so packed that this was impossible.

ONE HUNDRED LEADING HOOSIERS 1816-1916

(Prepared for the United Press by the Centennial Department of the Indiana Historical Commission.)

ROBERT DALE OWEN (8) 1801-1877.

Robert Dale Owen served two terms in congress, 1843-1847. His speech on the Tariff of 1845 was of such excellence that the democrats used it as a campaign pamphlet. The bill creating the great Smithsonian Institute was fathered by Owen and for many years was one of the regents.

Politically Owen was a democrat, but when the Civil War broke out, he stood by President Lincoln. Governor Morton appointed him to purchase arms for the Indiana troops, and later President Lincoln appointed him to revise the contracts for military supplies when Secretary of War Simon Cameron resigned. Owen urged President Lincoln early in the war to emancipate the slaves by proclamation. In acknowledging a letter to this effect, Lincoln said, "Its perusal stirred me like a trumpet call." Owen's funeral was attended by "infidels, believers, Christian neighbors, and Indians."

VEGETABLE CALOMEL

Vegetable calomel, extract of the root of the old-fashioned may-apple plant, does not salivate. As a liver stimulant, it's great. It's a perfect substitute for ordinary calomel (mercury); in fact, it's better, because its action is gentle instead of severe and irritating—and it leaves no mean, disagreeable after-effects. Physicians recognize this and prescribe may-apple root (podophyllin, they call it) daily.

Combined with four other standard, all-vegetable remedies, may-apple root may now be had at most any druggist's in convenient sugar-coated tablet form by asking for Santal Laxatives. If you forget the name, ask for the box that has the picture of the soldier on it.

These tablets are small, easy to take and are really wonderful little performers. They quickly clean out the poisons that are causing your headache, constipation, sour stomach, biliousness, dizzy spells, bad breath and coated tongue.

They are mild. They never gripe. And they are a bowel tonic as well as a cleanser and liver regulator. A 10c box should last one several weeks. A Physician's trial package (4 doses) will be mailed you free if you write mentioning this advertisement. The Santal Laxatives Co., 802 Madison Ave., Covington, Ky.

EFFICIENCY OF BOYCE'S ARMY PLAN EXPLAINED

Vocational and Army Training School Advocated in Accordance With Wilson's Idea.

By United Press.

Chicago, March 2.—An outline of how his proposed Vocational Army training school plan, endorsed by President Wilson, may be economically, efficiently and quickly started throughout the country, has been written by W. D. Boyce of the Boyce publication. In brief, Mr. Boyce suggests that a vocational and army training school be added to each state college under federal aid and guidance. Concerning the plan, President Wilson, in his recent western trip, said in part:

"We ought to have in this country a great system of industrial and vocational education, under Federal guidance; and it will be perfectly feasible and highly desirable to add to that and combine with it such training in the mechanism and use and care of arms, in the simpler forms of maneuver and organization, as will make these same men industrially and individually serviceable for national defense."

"The point about such a system will be that its emphasis will lie on the industrial and civil side of life, so that men will think first of their families and daily work and their services in the economic fields of the country, and only last of all to their serviceability to the nation as soldiers and men at arms. That is the ideal of America." Mr. Boyce in part says:

"To start the Army Vocational Schools, all that is necessary is for United States Army training barracks (for drilling and living purposes) to be added to the State colleges, with a corps of military instructors, equipment, etc., all of which can easily be provided by the Federal Government. All the expenses of this addition must be borne by the United States, which furnishes board, lodging and clothing for the young men who take the course. The Government does this in exchange for the student's services while he is being trained to be a fit soldier. The State furnishes the instruction in the trade, profession or occupation which the student elects to take. He is put to no expense and he remains in the Vocational Army School two years or more, going to his classes like any student in a college, but being under regular army discipline and living in barracks. After his graduation he is subject to the call of the United States Government for military service, but he goes into the trade, profession or occupation in which he has been instructed and in which he is a finished product."

"We have frequently called attention to the fact that 85 per cent of the boys of the United States are obliged to go to work to support themselves at the finish of their common school education, going without the vocational training which they want and need. The Vocational Army Schools would give every boy, whether his parents are poor, well-to-do or rich, an equal chance to get a practical education and at the same time fit himself to help defend his country."

"The Federal Government would be doing only what it now does, in furnishing military instruction, board and lodging, clothing and equipment to its regular soldiers, and at half expense, for it would not pay salaries to the students. The States would be doing only what they should do, in furnishing educational facilities for their citizens. The young men attending the Vocational Army Schools would not be kept out of productive work, as the regular soldiers are. When the soldier goes back to civilian life, his productive capacity is not increased, but when the graduates of the Vocational Army Schools go into their trades, occupations and professions, their productive capacity and earning ability will be increased many fold."

"Under the Vocational Army School plan, 90 per cent of the youths of the United States would become fit men to defend their country in time of need."

MIGATORY BIRD LAW CONTINUES IN FORCE

Federal Regulations Prohibit Shooting of Wild Fowls Until Next Fall.

Washington, March 2.—A misleading statement has recently become current in newspapers of the Mississippi Valley and elsewhere, to the effect that the Department of Agriculture has suspended the enforcement of the Federal regulations under the migratory bird law and by this means has enabled sportsmen, under State laws, to shoot wild fowls the coming spring.

Under the Federal regulations as they now stand, the season on all migratory wild fowl is closed until next autumn throughout the United States. Federal inspectors and wardens are required, and others interested in the protection of wild fowl are requested, to report to the Department of Agriculture all cases of violations of the regulations, in order that proper action may be taken.

The Department of Agriculture has no power to suspend the law or to pardon violations of the regulations. Doubtless the erroneous impression, on which the newspaper statements are based, has grown out of the pendency of litigation involving the constitutionality of the Act of Congress approved March 4, 1913, under which the regulations were promulgated. The lower Federal courts disagreed as to the validity of the statute and the issue was carried to the Supreme

Following the lower court decisions, Congress appropriated money for the purpose of continuing the enforcement of the law. GOODRICH'S FRIENDS SEE HIS SUCCESS IN PRIMARY Encouragement Given Him in His Race for Governor, According to His Headquarters.

Indianapolis, Ind., March 2—James P. Goodrich, of Winchester, will receive the Republican nomination for Governor at the Primary next Tuesday, according to the estimate of John W. McCradle formerly a member of the State Tax Board, who has been in charge of the Goodrich Headquarters here for the last few weeks.

"I am confident that Mr. Goodrich will receive a majority of the first choice votes at the Primary March 7th," said Mr. McCradle. He not only is the first choice of a majority of the voters but he is the second choice of thousands of men who are supporting the other candidates.

"I am not jumping at conclusions regarding the vote that Mr. Goodrich will receive. We have had reports here every week from every section of the state. From the start of the race for Governor it was apparent that the sentiment was stronger in favor of Mr. Goodrich than any candidate. It is not surprising that this should have been the case. Mr. Goodrich was chairman of the Republican State Committee for ten years during which he established a reputation for efficiency and fair dealing that made him friends in every precinct in Indiana.

"Mr. Goodrich gave his time unselfishly in helping to bring about the election of thousands of Republicans in Indiana and in carrying the principles of his party to victory. He never was a self seeker in politics and it was not surprising that men in every part of the state should join in the request that he should make the race for Governor.

"Mr. Goodrich, however, has not asked the nomination for Governor as a reward for his political services, as valuable as they have been to the party. He is and has been for many years a most thorough student of public affairs. Probably no other man in Indiana knows its needs better than Mr. Goodrich. He has had the experience in addition to the study that makes him an ideal candidate for Governor.

"He will make a strong executive of the State's affairs not only because of his fine qualities as a leader of his party but on account of his knowledge of the needs of his State and his ability to bring about the enactment of laws that will equalize and lower taxation.

"The fact that Mr. Goodrich is not only a thorough student of taxation but is prepared to go before the 1917 legislature with a definite program for the passage of taxation laws that will reduce taxes and put an end to the rapidly growing burden of taxes, that has become almost too heavy to bear during the last few years of Democratic administration, has made him the logical candidate for Governor with the farmers and property owners generally.

"Mr. Goodrich is a farmer, business man, banker and attorney. He has been successful in his private and in his public life. He is pledged to give the State a real business-like, efficient and economical administration that the people have desired for a long time.

"Mr. Goodrich has received the endorsement of farmers, laboring men, business men and fully three-fourths of the Republican and independent newspapermen of the state. He has been endorsed by Edward C. Toner, former chairman of the Progressives; Rudolph G. Leeds, former national committeeman of the Progressives and by thousands of members of the new party who hail Mr. Goodrich as the logical candidate on whom the two parties can unite, this year.

Mr. Goodrich knows how to organize his party for a campaign against the Democrats. He is, in fact, the logical candidate from every standpoint and he will be nominated at the Primary Tuesday."

U BOAT CARRIES BIG SEAPLANE

Germany Said to Have Evolved a Novel War Vessel.

SUBMARINES LIKE MONITORS

Three New Inventions That Will Probably Prove Important Factors in the War Are Reported From the Germans—Zeppelins Can Hide In Cloud of Smoke Emitted by Motors.

Three new inventions that mark great steps forward in the manufacture of implements of war have recently been reported from German sources.

A special correspondent of the Scotsman, a newspaper, describes a new submarine terror that he says Germany claims to have perfected.

It appears that there has been designed a submarine which is to act as a submersible with a seaplane hangar and that a small seaplane has been evolved to occupy the nest provided for it in the special chamber opening from the deck of the submarine. The planes of the flying machine will be folded and there will be a new style afterdeck on the submarine to permit the seaplane being slid up from the surface of the water prior to being stowed away.

It is obvious—to the Scotsman's correspondent at least—that the use of the seaplane combination with a submarine offers great possibilities and that the German "falcon," released from its cage in some quiet inlet in the neighborhood of any important work or harbor, might do some damage before it was brought low.

Submarine Like a Monitor.

A new German submarine built on lines somewhat similar to the original American Monitor is described by the London Daily Telegraph's naval expert, Archibald Hurd, who says it has already been seen by neutral vessels in the Baltic.

"They are fairly big vessels," he says. "Above the more or less cylindrical hull is built a long battery, well protected by armor, which can be made completely watertight and extends for a considerable distance along the hull. In the center is the commander's tower, from which orders are issued.

"Within this watertight battery are mounted guns. Their caliber is unknown, but they are certainly more powerful weapons than anything the Germans have hitherto had.

"The boats possess the faculty of becoming submerged and can bring the armored battery just above the water, leaving the hull of the submarine, which would otherwise be riddled with shot, still submerged.

"In this awash condition they are immune from the very light artillery of a merchant ship, the submarine's guns, as well as the crews serving them, being out of harm's way behind the steel walls.

"Such vessels, I imagine, will be used in the new campaign. The ships, which have the qualities of the original American monitors, have in addition the offensive and defensive power of submergence."

Development of Zeppelins.

The Berlin papers publish stories of the Zeppelin development from a Swiss source, according to which thousands of expert mechanics employed at the Friedrichshafen works turn out one or two airships every week. The trial flights over the Lake Constance neighborhood never cease, and the noise of the motors, which are tested day and night at the great Masbach motor works may plainly be heard far into Switzerland.

The Zeppelin trial flights now are like military maneuvers. The shape of the airship has undergone a great change since the first types appeared. It is much longer and slenderer, two gondolas hang very low, and no connecting gangway is visible, but is probably hidden within the vast body. The gondolas are armor plated and carry at least six machine guns and several larger pieces of artillery. The platform, formerly noticed on top of the balloon, has disappeared.

Motors Greatly Enlarged.

The airships show a metallic shine extending over one-fifth of the whole body. Evidently the envelope or parts of it are metalized by a newly discovered process. The steering apparatus is much simplified and reduced in size, while the motors are greatly enlarged.

Interesting descriptions of the warlike maneuvers of the Zeppelins are given, their ability in ascending, descending and turning having been astonishingly improved. Not even the noise of the motors can drown the sharp crack of the machine guns rattling away thousands of feet high over the lake.

Sometimes an airship suddenly disappears entirely in a cloud of vapor emanating from its own body. If the atmosphere is the least foggy the airship becomes absolutely invisible. Therefore it is not surprising that the English flyers have failed to discover them. Only the brightest moonlight may reveal an airship at night, while sudden darts from its own powerful searchlights make concealment impossible. There is much discussion about the new aerial torpedoes which are said to be destined to play an important part in next raids.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hal's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

TO PLANT 7,000,000 TREES.

Extended Reforestation Program In Pennsylvania This Year.

Officials of the Pennsylvania state forestry department estimate that more than 7,000,000 young trees, about half of the number in the state's twenty-four tree nurseries, would be used for reforestation this year, forming the most extended program of the kind ever undertaken by the commonwealth.

The bulk of these trees will be planted on state forestry reservations, on new auxiliary reserves and similar public work, and a large portion will be given free to persons desiring to use them for reforestation. The free distribution will not be for ornamental or shade planting, but only for development of wooded areas.

It is understood that the British government is negotiating with other railroads with the hope of obtaining a half million ties for use in constructing trenches in France.

THE FUNCTION OF ADVERTISING

Advertising is a vital force in the problem of distribution.
But to be nearly 100 per cent.
efficient it must be linked to the selling end of the business.
Manufacturers are turning to newspaper advertising because it ties up with the men who sell their goods—the retail dealers.
Retailers are not only newspaper readers but they directly feel the effects of newspaper advertising.
They are cordial to products
when manufacturers advertise them in the newspapers.
Manufacturers are invited to send to the Bureau of Advertising, American Newspaper Publishers Association, World Bldg.,
New York, for a copy of the booklet, “The Reader and His Friends.”

Care of the Baby

TEETHING.

The baby usually cuts his first tooth when he is 6 to 8 months old, and by the end of the first year has, ordinarily, 6 teeth. He should have 2 teeth at 18 months of age; 16 when he is two years old, and before the end of the third year the entire set of 20 "milk" teeth.

The process of teething in a healthy baby cannot properly be held responsible for the illness commonly attributed to it. The first half-dozen teeth rarely give the baby any pain, but as the double teeth appear there is occasionally at the same time a little disturbance, such as loss of appetite, and possibly evidences of slight indigestion, which may last for a few days. But if the disturbance is more serious than this, some other reason for it should be sought.

Teething takes place through the weaning period and during the second year, when mistakes in feeding are so often made which upset the baby's digestion, when mistakes in feeding are so often made which upset the baby's digestion, even if they do not make him seriously ill. On this account it is often unjustly blamed for making the baby sick, when the real reason lies in the fact that he was overfed or improperly fed, or perhaps that the weather was very hot.

It must be remembered that excessive heat aggravates any ill the baby may have, and is quite sufficient in itself to make the baby sick. It is necessary in summer, therefore, both on account of the heat and because of the disturbances connected with weaning and teething, to take great care of the baby in all respects, and especially to feed him with great caution. Directions for feeding the baby are given in a pamphlet called "Infant Care" which will be sent free to anyone who asks for it, applying to the Chief of the Children's Bureau, U. S. Department of Labor, Washington, D. C.

The baby may not gain in weight during the cutting of his various double teeth, but it is not a serious matter to have the weight remain stationary for a short time. The baby will quickly regain the lost ground when he is well again, and eating his full rations.

The mother should never allow anyone to persuade her to give the baby patent medicines, such as soothing syrups to relieve the pain of teething. If they do relieve it they probably contain opium in some form which is much worse for the baby than the suffering. It is a safe rule never to give medicine of any sort to a baby, save that which is ordered by a doctor.

From the time when the double teeth make their appearance throughout life the teeth should have daily care. For the baby a very soft brush is necessary and the utmost care should be taken not to injure in any way the delicate tissues of the mouth when brushing the tiny teeth. After the baby has several teeth, the mother should see to it that no particles of solid food are left between them after the baby has eaten. If the first set of teeth is well taken care of, the second set will be healthier, and in addition the child will have been taught a good habit that will last all his life.

There is considerable variation in the time that the teeth first appear, but if the baby has no teeth by the time he is one year old, he should have medical attention to see if any disease is causing this unusual delay in the development of the teeth, or whether it is due to improper diet.

In the Vanguard of Spring Styles

If the pretty suit for spring which is pictured above, had nothing else to recommend it but the charm of simplicity, it would still possess the best of all attributes of the street dress. But it has also the distinction which belongs to novelty in design and is compellingly good to look at.

This is one of a number of new models in which taffeta is combined with a cloth in making up suits. In this particular case it is made up of serge. The skirt is wide and plain, with most of the fullness disposed at the sides. The facing, of serge, is very wide and is set on to the taffeta with a double row of machine stitching. Skirts made in the same way, of cloth, are faced up with leather in the same color as the cloth, set on with a small piping of leather, and were among the earliest imports of the season.

The smart coat of taffeta is designed with a yoke of serge and finished at the bottom with a wide banding of it. This is rather an exception to the rule of bandings on street suits, but is admirable because it corresponds with the skirt facing, as it should. The plain, wide belt is of the serge also and the sleeves are finished with cuffs of it.

The sailor collar is made of the taffeta and stands rather high at the back. It is protected by a white organdie collar with scalloped edges, and this is decorated with black hemstitching, another of the new-style features for spring. In the coat, as in the skirt, most of the fullness is gathered in at the sides at the waist line, where it is apparently confined by the belt.

It would not be easy to find a more dependable style in a spring suit than this. It is one of many in which two materials are combined, but it is not always done with such nice balance. The silk and cloth are of the same shade and usually in dark colors. Less practical but very elegant suits are made in light gray and in tan color.

MARGARET MASON'S FASHION LETTER

(Written for the United Press.)

New York, March 2.—The odds and ends of the imminent sartorial season are bound to make both ends meet by making both ends odd. Just which end will be odder were hard to say since, though some of the hats are the quintessence of quaintness, so too are some of the low down boots. Where a parasol is the height of novelty a pair of stockings may sound the depths of originality. A striking hand bag in the hand is offset by a lot of ruff stuff in the neck. Of all the mad conceits of a mad hatter the chapeau that has a life size chandelier, comb wattles and all roosting over the crown and completely overshadowing the tiny turban brim, is undoubtedly the true poultry of millinery. Another quaint hat is shaped like a broad brimmed sailor with an under brim of straw and the upper part, crown and all, composed of inch wide grosgrain ribbons running from the edge of the brim to the top of the crown in alternating tints of old blue, old rose, yellow, purple and ecru. In the centre of the crown these ribbons come together in a long tassel of their own fringed lengths. A pair of shoes that absolutely kicks over all traces of conventionality is to be worn with an evening gown of violet net over an embroidered and spangled slip of green taffeta the shade of a tender young crocus shoot. The sensational boots are of violet kid with uppers of green taffeta ornately embroidered in sprays of spangled herbage. Stockings a mass of sequins up to the calf are odd stockings even if they do go in pairs. Another stocking that offers untold but not unwritten possibilities has your name, your favorite motto or pet expression embroidered in script on the in-step. Why not have one's first name on the right stocking and the last name on the left? Think what a saving this would be of cards. One need only point her toes to be identified. Something new under the sun and over the daughter of Eve is a parasol of green edged in a vine of artificial rambler roses and leaves. Another one of Chinese yellow drops tiny blue tassels from the tip of each rib and has a tiny necklace of blue beads around the tip of its ferule. For a bell of fashion comes a bell of a bag. It is of silk and is ruffled out in the shape of a bell with a tassel at the end for a clapper. Undoubtedly this was designed for the woman who insists on carrying her rings in her hand bag. Up to her ears in ruffs and chokers of pastel tinted batiste is the Spring maid and for her there is no escape from the cape of white or tinted batiste that starts as a collar and finishes down around the shoulders. It is called a nun collar and is unbecomingly none.

Some Hints on Ties.

Windsor ties of silk taffeta and crepe are in plain, ombre, striped and plaid effects. Ribbon ties are in velvet, satin, grosgrain and belting designs. These are more in cross stripes than in one color. The ends are tasseled with jet or steel, have large silk balls, plaited fans of silk or Chinese-looking pendants of jade. The very newest have a buckle of the ribbon part way down and tiny roses of chiffon dot the necklet from the buckle to the ends. The new jabots have a cascade of lace edging from three to ten inches wide.

The newest ideas are sport stock and glazed leather sets. Scarfs of this soft leather are swathed around the high collars. A plain piece of neckwear is a stock of black moire, taffeta or satin, with high tabs in

Women Who Lead the Way

Miss Blanche Geary—Y. W. C. A. Building Expert.

The celebration of February as the Y. W. C. A. semi-centennial jubilee month has brought before the public a knowledge of the immense work done by Miss Blanche Geary. It is a peculiar fact that Miss Geary, who is said to have done more to improve the living conditions of American women than any living woman, is herself not an American. Before she began her work in the interests of better housing conditions she was a music teacher of London.

Her first experience in home building was acquired in England, where she spent four years voluntarily studying the management of a model tenement building in London. While there she met an American woman from whom she learned of a model tenement and suburban home colony near New York. She at once decided to come to the United States to learn more of the new venture.

She applied to the suburban home company and after some time she succeeded in convincing the officers that a woman could manage the enterprise. She began her work with 150 tenements under her jurisdiction. At the end of eight years she was in charge of 2,864 houses with all of the responsibility of hiring employees, choosing locations and tenants, the collection of rents and making repairs.

The movement that had been but city wide in its scope became a national movement when the national board of the Y. W. C. A. asked that she accept the position of economic building specialist with that organization. Almost 1,000 associations now depend upon her for advice in the matter of building and in the choice of sites. In addition she advises the materials to be used in the construction of the buildings. She plans the equipment and occupies the position of super critic of plans. All blue prints of proposed buildings are first submitted to her to make any changes that she deems necessary to promote efficiency.

Miss Geary insists that the object of the Y. W. C. A. is to promote a complete family spirit among the young women under one roof and that the question of housing the business woman must take into consideration the factors that will grant the greatest degree of freedom and independence.

To meet the needs of wage-earning women away from home who do not reside at the Y. W. C. A. homes, Miss Geary and the department of the organization which she represents, are endeavoring to interest individuals or groups of people to erect rooming and boarding houses conducted on the same plans as the association.

A few factors which Miss Geary considers essential to any well managed Y. W. C. A. or boarding house are rooms for fun or frolic of an informal nature, a recreation hall for larger social affairs, rooms for the entertainment of men callers, a kitchenette for "spreads," an infirmary for temporary illness, and a kimono parlor on an upper floor, where the women may congregate after a day's toil. The expense of housing should not average over $5.00 for each woman, according to the expert. This is also to include board. The cost should range from $3.50 to $6.50, thus meeting all expenses of the organization and aiding the inefficient girl to live comfortably until she has acquired the ability to earn a better wage.

CRUMB FRUIT CAKE.

One egg, one cup sugar, two-thirds cup baking molasses, half cup butter, half cup lard, one teaspoon (scant) of each nutmeg, cinnamon, ginger, two teaspoons (little bit rounded) soda, four cups flour, one pound seeded raisins, one pound figs, one pound dates, ten cents worth citron, one cup nut meats, half pound currants. Mix flour, sugar, butter and lard like pie dough, then take out one cup for on top of cake. Put soda in measuring cup, slowly pour boiling water on till cup is full and no foam on top. Put all together, then mix in fruit and nut meats (all but citron). The fruit to be chopped fine, dates seeded first; currants should be looked over, washed and dried before using. Can use pint cup for measuring and can use two eggs if you wish. Grease pan, line with white paper and grease paper. Put cake in. When pan is half full sprinkle the citron over, then add balance. Sprinkle on top with cup of crumbs saved out. Bake in slow oven till done. Will make two good-sized cakes.

ESCALOPED CORN.

Butter a baking dish and in bottom of dish put a layer of cracker crumbs, a little salt, pepper and butter; then another layer of cracker crumbs, and so on until dish is nearly full, having the crumbs for top layer. Over all pour plenty of milk. Bake three-fourths hour in moderate oven until a light brown.

MAYONNAISE DRESSING.

Put three eggs in a sauce pan. beat well. Add scant pint vinegar, salt- spoon salt, two cups sugar. Mix one teaspoon dry mustard with two teaspoons flour in a little water, then add to the rest. Put on slow fire and let come to a boil, stirring all the while.

BAKED SLICED HAM.

Get a center cut of ham about an inch thick. Cover it with brown sugar, sprinkle with paprika, place in pan of water (do not cover) and bake slowly one hour. This gives a baked ham dinner for a small family.

CREAM CHEESE AND NUT SALAD

Crack a half pound of English walnuts very carefully, to keep in halves. Make little balls of cream cheese and put half a walnut on each side. Lay on cups made of lettuce leaves and pour a French dressing over them. Serve with wafers.

PRESSED MEATS.

One pound fresh lean pork, two pounds round steak; add three pints hot water and one teaspoonful salt. Cook four hours. Chop meat fine, add some of the stock, season to taste and press in a deep dish.

BANANA SALAD.

Pare ripe bananas, cut crosswise, roll in peanut crumbs and cover with mayonnaise dressing.

Keep Rooms Ventilated.

From the fall closing to the spring opening of windows and doors the chances of health are 60 per cent lower than during the free-and-easy life of summer.

It is of vital importance that an upper opening be kept in every living room, kitchen and sleeping apartment for the escape of the foul air emanating from life, labor and decay.

Rooms that are not provided with an upper register or window ventilator can be perfectly ventilated by lowering the window a fraction of an inch. This imperceptible opening is a regular life insurance.

If this precaution is heeded all winter long, day and night, there will be a reduction in lung and throat diseases. In consumption cases this law should be rigidly enforced.

When spreading butter on sandwiches or toast do not try to soften the butter but heat a silver knife by placing it in boiling water. The difficulty is overcome once.

Household Hints

Nothing else sweetens vessels in which milk has been kept so well as a solution of baking soda and hot water, in the proportion of a level teaspoonful to a quart of warm water. Let the solution stand in the vessels long enough to get cold. Pudding dishes or pots and pans which have been burned are easily cleaned this way.

Never put a particle of soap about your silver. When it needs polishing take a piece of soft leather and whitening and rub hard. The proprietor of a large silver establishment said: Housekeepers ruin their silver by washing it in soapsuds; it makes it look like pewter." Potato parings or boiled potatoes are good to clean silver.

The old way of pulling a straw from a broom to test cake or bread is hardly sanitary. Buy a 10-cent whisk broom, cut off the top, cut the straws in short lengths and keep them in a box in the table drawer. A bunch of these always lasts a very long time; they are always ready and clean.

ROMPERS FOR DAILY WEAR

Something new in rompers for wee girls allows them perfect freedom. They are made of chambray or gingham, in plain colors, trimmed with plaids or the reverse. Or sometimes two plain colors are combined.

THIS SUMMER'S SAILORS

Even the sailor hats for spring are decked out gayly with ribbons, flowers and ornaments. Two of the most approved styles are shown above, in which wide striped ribbons are draped over crown and brim.

Chapter XXVII

It was with some misgivings that Kemp left Alan at the coast. Alan was still very weak. Kemp stood, more incongruous than ever, against the rail of the little coaster bound for Pernambuco and eyed Alan, whom he had made comfortable in a camp bed on the deck.

"It seems to me, Mr. Wayne," he said, "that there might be business waiting for me at Pernambuco that I don't know about. I've got a hunch I'd best go along of you and see."

Alan smiled. "I know what your hunch is, Kemp, and it's a wrong one. I'm all right. Weak, but I'll make it. Don't worry."

Kemp was standing in angles. His hands were thrust in his trousers pockets, but even so his elbows were crooked. One foot was raised on a rail. He was careless as usual. His unbuttoned vest stuck out behind. His Stetson hat was pulled well down over his eyes. His eyes had taken on the far-away and slightly luminous look that always came into them when he was about to speak from the heart.

"Mr. Wayne," he said, "I've told you some things about Lieber and you've seen some more. You know how he stands. Lieber's livin' in hell, like a rich greaser in the Bible with his tongue stuck out beggin' for one drop of water, only Lieber hasn't got his tongue stuck out—he's bitin' it."

Kemp paused and Alan nodded. "I was thinkin'," Kemp continued, "thet perhaps you'n Mr. Lansing, with yo' folks he'pin', mought chuck him that drop o' water when you get back to heaven, meanin' Noo Yawk." Kemp brought his eyes slowly around and rested them on Alan.

"Kemp," said Alan, "don't you worry. If J. Y. Wayne & Co. haven't gone to smash or the world otherwise come to an end, you can be sure Lieber will get his water in a full bucket."

Kemp nodded and with a "S'long and good luck," disappeared down the gangway.

At Pernambuco Alan found an accumulation of mail awaiting him and a liner bound for home. The liner was too big to get into the little harbor behind the reef. She rode the swell a mile out from shore.

Alan lost no time in making his transfer. From the tender he was winched up to the deck in a passenger basket. As he left the wicker coop he smiled at himself in disgust. Ten Percent Wayne had often jumped for a gangway from the top of a flying sea; never before had he gone on board as cargo. But the smile suddenly left his face. He reeled and put out one hand toward a rail. Somebody caught his arm and led him to a long chair. He sank into it and shivered.

It was a girl that had helped him. As soon as she saw he was not going to faint she left him, to come back presently with the doctor and a room steward. They took charge of him.

Day after day Alan lay in his cabin, listless, before he thought of his batch of letters. They were still in the pocket of his coat. He asked the steward to hand them to him, looked through them, picked out one and laid the rest aside. The one he picked out was Clem's.

With her own peculiar wisdom Clem had written not about him or herself, but about Red Hill. Alan read and then dropped the letter to his lap. His hands fell clenched at his sides. His eyes, grown large, stared out down the long vista of the mind. Walls faded away and the sounds of a great ship at sea were suddenly dumb. To his ears came instead the caroling of birds in evening song after rain, to his eyes a vision of Red Hill dripping light from its myriad leaves and to his heart the protecting, brooding shelter of Maple House—of home.

It cleanses a man's soul to have been at death's door. Sickiness, more than love, leads a man up. Alan was feeling cleansed—like a little child—so it seemed a quite natural thing that the girl who had taken charge of him on his arrival on board should knock at his door and then walk in. She drew out a camp-stool and sat down beside him.

She was very small and very young, not in years but with what Alan termed to himself acquired youth. Her nearsighted eyes peered out through big glasses. They seemed to see only when they made a special effort, and yet they seemed to give out light.

"You are better?" she asked, and smiled.

Alan caught his breath at that smile. "Yes," he said, "I am much better today. I have had a letter from home."

"You must get up now and come up on deck," said the girl. "I'll wait for you outside." Her voice had a peculiar modulation. It attracted and soothed the ear.

Alan frowned and then smiled. "All right," he said, "wait for me." He dressed laboriously. His hands seemed weighted.

On deck she had his chair ready for him beside her own. She tucked his rug about him and then sat down. "Don't talk ever, unless you want to," she said. "Silent people are best."

"Why?" asked Alan.

"They are springs. Their souls bubble."

"And the people that chatter?" asked Alan.

"They are geysers," said the girl, and smiled.

Alan was entertained—almost amused. "What do you do when a geyser spouts?" he asked.

"What do you do?" replied the girl. "I run."

"I'm afraid I haven't run—always," said Alan. "I generally try to clap a tin hat on them."

"You must be strong to do that. I'm not very strong."

Alan glanced over her frail body. "What are you?" he asked.

"I'm a missionary. At least, I was a missionary. I've had to give it up. One needs so much to be a missionary."

"I never thought of it that way," said Alan. "I always thought that it was the people that were unfit for almost anything else that turned to missionarying as a last resort."

"Oh, no!" said the girl, sitting up very straight in her chair and fixing her eyes on his face. "How wrong you are! Missionarying, as you call it, is just another name for giving, and how can one give a great deal unless one has a great deal to give—strength and youth and vitality?"

"And you have given all?" asked Alan.

The girl's eyes filled.

"No, you haven't given all," went on Alan quickly. "You are still giving. I must not borrow your last mite. But—your voice is like a nurse's hand."

When Alan went to bed he could not sleep. For a while the little missionary girl held his thoughts. He was filled with wonder, not at her, but at himself. For once in his life he had not been flippant before grave things.

From the girl his thoughts turned to Alix. He could have cabled to her about Gerry from Pernambuco, but he had not done so. The note that he was carrying for Gerry was light—only a half-sheet, probably. The lightness of it told Alan that the things Gerry had to say to his wife could not be put on paper. Alan had almost cabled. Now he was glad he had not done so.

"Alix," he said to himself, "isn't waiting, she's trusting. A cable would have lengthened waiting by a month."

Then, without volition, his mind wandered from Alix and raced ahead to the goal of his journey. What was the goal of his journey? Whither was he bound? He reached for Clem's letter and held it in folded hands. He had no need to read it again. The words were nothing; the picture was all. It stretched before his mind, a living canvas.

Once when Alan was wandering with an Englishman in the hills above Granada, a faint odor had brought them to a sudden halt. It was the Englishman who made the surprising discovery first. "Blackberries, by Jove!" he had exclaimed. "Good old blackberries." And then they two had stood together, yet half a world apart, and stared at the berry-laden bush. What vision of a tangled, high-walled garden burst upon the Englishman Alan never knew, but to himself had come a memory of East mountain in autumn, so clear, so poignant, that it had brought his throbbing heart into his throat.

It was so now with Clem's letter. The words were but a hurried daub, but they touched his eyes with a magic wand. The daub became a scene, a picture, a world—his world.

Red Hill was spread out before him, a texture where the threads and colors of life were blended into a carpet soft but enduring. Men walked and little children played on it. Alan closed his eyes and sighed. What had he been doing with life? Making sacking? Sacking was commercial. It paid in cash. It was the national industry. But what could one do with sacking on Red Hill?

Then, almost suddenly, the full spirit of Clem's letter seized him. One did not take gifts to Red Hill. To every one of its children Red Hill was the source of all gifts—the source of life. On that thought he slept.

When he was back once more in his rooms, before Swithson had had time to open a bag, Alan re-directed Gerry's note to Alix to Red Hill and sent Swithson out to post it. He did not try to temper the shock of the note with a covering letter. He was too weak and tired. Besides, he felt that the note carried its own antidote to joy.

The next morning a message came by hand to Alan's rooms. Alix had come to town and wished to see him at once. Would he please come around? He replied that he was too ill. Half an hour later Swithson answered a ring at the door and Alix slipped quickly past him into Alan's sitting room. There was a flush of anger in her cheeks, but Alan was pleased to see no trace of tears in her eyes. A woman's crying always touched him on the raw and seldom awakened his pity.

At sight of him Alix forgot her concern for herself. "Why, Alan!" she cried, "what is the matter?"

Alan laughed. There was a pleasant note in his laugh she had never heard

"Well, is That All You Have to Say?"

before. "I'm all right, Alix. Don't make any mistake. I'm a resurrection in the bud. Doing fine. I don't have to ask how you are. You're well. You're looking just as well as a little slip like you can ever look. Sit down, do."

Alix's thoughts went back to herself and immediately the flame burned again in her cheeks. She pulled Gerry's crumpled note from her glove and tossed it open on the table before Alan. He read the two or three lines in which Gerry told her he would arrive shortly. The brief note was intentionally colorless. "Well?" he asked.

Alix turned flashing eyes on him. "Well? Is that all you have to say? Alan, it is not well. I've come here because you must tell me—somebody must tell me—now—all the things that that note hides behind its wonderfully blank, weakened, little, hypocritical face."

Alan's eyes gleamed with amusement at the rippling words. Alix was certainly well. Then suddenly she collapsed in a chair. "Three years!" she gasped. Her hands went up to hold her head and she began to cry in a way Alan had never heard a woman cry before. The gasping sobs racked his nerves. He felt as though the sobs were tearing their way up from his own breast. He gripped the arms of the chair in which he sat. His body telephoned to his brain that he was going to faint and at such astounding news Ten Percent Wayne woke up and took charge. "Alix!" the word snapped out like the crack of a whip. "You stop crying or I'll slap you, and when I slap I slap hard."

Alix choked, swallowed and looked at him, outraged and unbelieving. Alan's eyes were blazing. "You listen to me," he commanded, "listen to every word I say. You've gone through a lot in three years, but just fasten your mind on this: so has Gerry. That note is colorless because Gerry made it colorless. It doesn't tell anything, because Gerry isn't a coward and because there are things he must tell you face to face to get your answer clear in his own mind. I'm making you curious with every word. All right, be curious. But you can be sure of one thing: if Gerry had wanted me to tell you his story he'd have asked me to, but he didn't. He didn't even ask me not to. He was standing in deep waters, but he had his head and shoulders out. He wasn't asking for my or anybody else's hand to help him up the bank. He didn't ask me not to meddle because he knew I was man enough to see where he stood without words. He trusted me." Alan's voice trailed off weakly. He closed his eyes.

"But, Alan," said Alix, "I must know something. Is he well? Is he—"

Alan held up his hand. "Just one thing and then I'm going to sleep. I never thought the old Rock would ever loom so big."

Alix watched him doze off. She felt strangely comforted by the crumb he had tossed her. She went back in her mind to a dinner of long ago, when she had defended Gerry's placid weight against Alan. She sat on for half an hour, busy with varying thoughts. She looked curiously around Alan's sitting room. How strange that she should be here and yet how natural. How safe she felt. She wondered if it was all because of the defenses she had raised up in herself or whether any woman would feel safe with the new and weakened Alan. She slipped out without waking him and sent a cable to Pernambuco. By night she had an answer. Gerry had not yet sailed!

Days passed. She went out only for exercise. Her mind was busy with wondering. The judge called regularly. He had put off going to Red Hill. He wanted Alix to feel that a friend was at hand and, besides, he had Alan on his hands. Alan was worrying him in a new way. Sometimes he seemed to the judge a mere shell—a blown egg, robbed of the seed of life. The judge talked of him often to Alix, but she could not fasten her mind on Alan. "Take him to the Hill," was her listless advice.

"I've tried," said the judge, "and he says he's not ready—not strong enough. I told him that's what he ought to go for—to get strong—and he said a funny thing. 'There's a kind of strength we must generate or borrow. I didn't borrow, so now I'm generating. It takes time.' And then he dropped off to sleep. Before, he used to run you through with his tongue when he wanted to stop conversation. Now he just goes to sleep. It's just as effective and almost as original."

BABY WEEK IDEA POPULAR

Federal Officials Are Urging Celebrations During Week of May 8.

Indianapolis, March 2.—So much enthusiasm has resulted from the "baby week" celebrated in Indianapolis last year that other states have taken up the idea and officials at Washington are urging a general celebration along the lines of the celebration here. The baby week will not be repeated in Indianapolis this year, however, because of a lack of funds, according to Dr. J. N. Hurty, secretary of the state board of health.

The board is being called upon daily to assist celebrations in smaller cities of the state. With the assistance of physicians sent out by the government and professors and doctors from the state universities, conferences for the improvement of the home and children have been held in six cities and eight other conferences have been planned. The suggestion of the government is that the week beginning May 8 be set aside as "baby week" and many of the states have accepted the suggestion.

SHEA AMBASSADOR TO CHILE

Indiana Man to Succeed H. P. Fletcher, Who Goes to Mexico.

Washington, March 2.—Joseph H. Shea (Dem.), appellate judge, of Seymour, Ind., has been selected by President Wilson as ambassador to Chile, and will be nominated in the near future. He will succeed Henry P. Fletcher (Rep.), who has been appointed ambassador to Mexico.

Members of the Iowa delegation in congress called to urge the appointment of an Iowa man to the Chilean ambassadorship, and the president told them the place had been promised to Indiana. The appointment of Judge Shea will probably not be made for several weeks. Henry P. Fletcher, the former ambassador to Chile, who has been appointed ambassador to Mexico, will come here about the first of April for a conference with the president and the secretary of state before proceeding to Mexico. The plan is to appoint the Chilean ambassador about the time Mr. Fletcher arrives here, so that the two may have a conference.

Names Press Aid at St. Louis.

Washington, March 2.—Robert Ewing of New Orleans, Democratic national committeeman from Louisiana, who will have charge of the press section of the Democratic national convention at St. Louis in June, has appointed James D. Preston, superintendent of the senate press gallery, as sergeant-at-arms in charge of the press section.

Fatal Explosion.

Youngstown, O., March 2.—An explosion in the mixing building of the Youngstown Sheet and Tube company at Youngstown resulted in the death of John P. Kerk, a workman, and the injury of three other men. The explosion is supposed to have been caused by water coming in contact with hot metal in a ladle.

Twelve Votes Cost $2,500 in Primary.

East St. Louis, Ill., March 2.—Figures compiled on the municipal primary show that the election cost $2,500 and that twelve votes were cast in scattered precincts. Sixty-five election officials were on duty at $5 a day and 35,000 ballots were printed for the primary.

The Salad Bowl.
A SORTED FRUIT SALAD.—Prepare finely cut celery with the shredded whites of hard boiled eggs. Mash the yolks to a smooth paste with skinned and boned sardines and shape the mixture into balls, dipping them at last into a little of the dry yolk so as to make them a rich yellow. Dress the celery and egg whites with French dressing or mayonnaise, put the mixture on a bed of lettuce.
Whole Tomato Salad.—Scald some large, fully ripe and yet firm tomatoes; remove skins and put them against the ice for several hours. Put a whole tomato on one or two lettuce leaves, dress with well chilled mayonnaise and serve in this individual manner. This salad is meat and drink in point of nutriment, and many persons find it quite enough for the substantial dish of a Sunday night tea.

Fish Salad.—A delicious salad which is yet something out of the regular course is made of Bismarck herrings, three of which would make a dish large enough for several persons. Put the herrings in a bowl and cover them with a dressing made of olive oil, cayenne, horseradish and sliced white onion; add a tablespoonful of sauce and one of walnut ketchup. After the fish has soaked some time in the dressing, arrange it in a bed of lettuce finely shredded with the fingers and pour over the sauce.

Pickled Mussel Salad.—Line a bowl with thin strips of hard toast, then put in a pile of pickled mussels, dressing with oil and vinegar in which some sliced onion has soaked for awhile. The mussels can be had bottled, and all the good fish stores keep the freshly prepared ones once the season for them arrives. Add enough of the pickle liquid to moisten the toast.

Cheese Salad.—Rub cottage cheese to a smooth paste with cream, butter and salt; make the mixture into balls. Then rub a salad bowl with a cut clove of garlic and fill it with chicory or endive cut into narrow strips; border the bowl with the cheese balls after the center part of the salad has been treated to a French dressing.

Almond Salad.—Stone and chop six fat pimento olives; add half a cupful of blanched almonds cut fine and the same quantity of finely cut celery. Serve on lettuce with mayonnaise made without mustard.

MINERS DELIVER ULTIMATUM

Is Somewhat Less Than Their Original Demands.

New York, March 1.—Representatives of the bituminous coal miners, who have been conferring with bituminous operators respecting a wage increase and labor conditions in the mines, delivered an ultimatum to the operators.

They said that the minimum wage increase acceptable to them is a 3 per cent per ton increase in Pennsylvania, Illinois and Ohio, and 6 per cent per ton in western Pennsylvania. Payment must be on a mine run basis. The minimum wage increase acceptable was submitted at the request of the operators. It is somewhat less than the original demand which would have meant a 10 per cent increase over the average wages now being paid.

FIFTY MADE ILL BY FOOD

Poison at San Francisco Church Banquet Like Chicago Affair.

San Francisco, March 1.—Nearly fifty guests, all Methodists ministers and their wives, became seriously ill after partaking of food which is alleged to have been poisoned at a banquet given by Methodist ministers in the Howard Street Methodist church here. The first official report of the affair was made to the Methodist Ministers' association by the Rev. Samuel Quickmire, pastor of the church.

According to Dr. Quickmire, the victims were of the opinion that the ice cream contained poison.

"My wife and Mrs. Paul Smith, wife of the pastor of Central Methodist church," said Dr. Quickmire, "were among those who showed most plainly the effect of the food."

Dying Woman Seeks Her Husband.

South Bend, Ind., March 1.—Realizing that she is near death and that she can live only a short time, Mrs. Irving Dutcher of Buffalo, N. Y., has through friends, started a search for her husband in Indiana. Dutcher is a traveling salesman, and he disappeared several weeks ago.

Kev Trial March 8.

"The greatest health insurance in the world is the simplest," he said. "I never could quite understand why people are so negligent in the use of the simplest of all preventives of illness. It's all a matter of keeping the bowels open. The man who carries a little box of Rexall Orderlies has got a good health policy in his pocket. I believe they are the best laxative ever prepared, and their pleasant taste appeals to men, women and children alike."

POST CARD SHOWER GIVEN FOR COL. S. S. STOCKDELL

Well Known Resident Celebrates Eighty-Third Birthday—Many Bouquets Sent.

Col. S. S. Stockdell, who has been a patient at the Schenck Memorial Hospital for several weeks, celebrated his eighty-third birthday anniversary today and it was one of the brightest days of his life. His friends and he numbers them by the hundreds, arranged a post card shower for him and during the day he received more than a hundred cards. His room is filled with flowers which were sent by the fraternal orders of which he is a member and by other friends.

The I. O. O. F., Rebekah and Red Men's lodges joined in sending him a bouquet of eighty-three carnations. Besides this immense bouquet he received about ten others from friends who desired to remember him. During the day he has received many callers.

Mr. Stockdell is an old resident of this city and for many years was engaged in business here. For some time he has been clerk at the New Lynn Annex and enjoys the acquaintance and friendship of a large number of traveling men as well as of the citizens of Seymour. Several months ago he tripped and fell in the New Lynn Hotel lobby and fractured his left arm. Because of his advanced age the break did not heal properly and blood poison developed. He was removed to the hospital and for weeks has suffered intense pain. His vitality for a man of his years is remarkable. With all of his suffering which he endures patiently and uncomplainingly he has been in good spirits, hopeful of his ultimate recovery.

Because of the condition of the injured arm Mr. Stockdell's physicians believe that its amputation is necessary and the operation will be performed Friday. His friends trust that the operation will be successful, and that he will be able to withstand the shock and that his recovery will be rapid.

GREECE TRANSFERRING MONEY FROM LONDON TO AMERICA

Millions Have Been Removed From Banks In British Empire.

The government of Greece is quietly but steadily transferring its funds from London to New York. According to estimates by bankers whose institutions are depositories for Greek funds, an excess of $75,000,000 has found its way to this country from London for Greek account since Greece failed to aid Serbia when that country was attacked by Germany. Austria and Bulgaria. While bankers state that this movement on the part of Greece does not necessarily mean that she intends going to war with Great Britain or severing diplomatic relations with any of the entente allies, it is taken as a precautionary move by King Constantine's government in case a break should come.

London always had been a favorite depository for Greek funds, owing to the fact that Greece did a large part of her borrowing in Great Britain. London, too, was the center of the international money market, and having funds on deposit there made it easier to make payments in other parts of the world. When the concerted attack of the three Teutonic allies began on Serbia bankers in New York noticed an increase in the amount of Greek funds being transferred to this market. When British and French troops seized Saloniki the transfers of Greek government funds to the United States were augmented largely.

The transfers of Greek funds to New York do not mean that Greece is shipping gold. She is disposing of sterling credits which she has in London by selling them in New York. The proceeds received from the sale of these credits are then turned into dollars and deposited in banks. Greece has recently been increasing the number of her depositing banks in this country in order to distribute the funds she is storing.

It is not improbable that the Greek government is receiving large sums from both Great Britain and France for the occupation of Saloniki and for supplies. Such funds would naturally be placed to Greece's credit in London and are at once sold in this market for dollars.

Should any open break come between Greece and Great Britain the latter country would probably seize as enemy property all of the Greek government funds deposited in London. Greece seems to have taken time by the forelock in getting a large amount of her London cash balance out of that country and into New York almost before it was realized in Great Britain.
